A "CIVIC UNIVERSITY"

Clergyman's Plan For Uniting People of Kansas City.

WOULD HELP ALL CLASSES

Rev. Charles Ferguson, Pastor of a Kansas City Church, Advocates the Establishment of an Institution.

The Rev. Charles Ferguson, pastor of All Sons' church in Kansas City, Mo., is advocating the establishment of a civic university—a university of the people—in Kansas City. Discussing the question recently with a reporter of the Kansas City Times, Mr. Ferguson said:

"Kansas City is growing big by mere force of its topographical position. The place is metropolitan to an immense area of the most productive territory on the face of the earth. The city stands at the crossroads of an economic empire. Nothing, not even a civic conspiracy to thwart the laws of nature and enrich the few at the expense of the many, can prevent this city from being the biggest city of the mid-continent, the London or Paris of the American prairie. Whatever we do or leave undone the city is bound to be the gathering place of a million human beings within twenty years.

"The laws of nature are throwing a vast multitude of people together here, but the wills of the people must do the rest, must settle the term on which men shall meet here and the kind of society that shall be established. If the city shall be dominated by a conspiracy of money makers enlisted to circumvent those immutable laws of art and science that condition the success of civilizing enterprises the city will be big indeed, but it will be mean. The people, high and low, will live sordid and uninteresting lives, and Kansas City will but add one more Babylon to a tale that is already told.

"On the other hand, if the predominant force of the city shall be not a conspiracy to balk the moral laws of nature, but a conspiracy to discover and execute them, in spite of the regiments of commercial and political graft, then history will have another story to tell. There will be a spot in the Mississippi valley of imperishable and cosmopolitan interest.

"What is wanted is a civic university that shall be in effect a comprehensive labor union, wide enough in its ground plan to take in the whole industrial life of the city and aiming not merely to raise the wages of a trade or a class, but to increase the purchasing power of all honest incomes by furnishing the highest possible artistic and scientific conditions of social existence. Such a union would use its political and social power to open up an opportunity for all kinds of public service and to close every other career. The hard truth is that as things stand in this city today and in every other American city the shortest and surest road to social and economic power does not lie through the service of the community, but through devotion to one or another special interest more or less adverse to the common welfare. The simple rule, therefore, for building here a city rich and splendid beyond comparison with any of its rivals is to create a social organization that shall appreciate and promote all kinds of social efficiency and so draw the best brains and energies into the service of the whole people. Kansas City should add to the brilliant achievement of its Convention hall and its bright hope of a union station the plan of a third great civic institution, a university of the people, to house its working will as it sets itself to the mastery of materials in the name of the free creative spirit and the eternal laws.

"Now, a section of the general statutes of the state of Missouri relating to educational and benevolent institutions provides for the chartering under the privileges of those statutes of joint stock building associations for the housing of such institutions. Under the provisions of this section a university building could be erected that could easily assure the stockholders 4 per cent on their investment.

"Under its general aim of localizing the working force of the public will and in addition to its arrangements for teaching and preaching the gospel of the arts and sciences, which, by the way, should entail no public expense, the university building should furnish accommodations and headquarters for three other distinct and subordinate interests that are now crying aloud for a home to dwell in. And from these three sources, helped out by other rentals of offices and studios, the institution could derive a self sustaining revenue.

"First.—The labor unions of this city are trying to build a labor temple. They are not likely to do it all by themselves in this generation, although they have had some success in getting together a building fund. The reason that the labor temple idea makes slow progress here as well as in every other American city where it has been broached is that it has commonly been conceived as a class idea, and so is foreign to the American ideal, if not the actual, spirit of American institu-

Overwork Killing Us

In the Great Struggle for Wealth and Position We Are Becoming Weaker Than Our Forefathers.

By the cares of business and social life we use up or waste away the most vital elements of the human body before we realize our weak and run down condition. It seizes on us so quietly at first that little or no attention is paid to the symptoms, which commence with a queer, bewildering sensation in the head, later the power to concentrate the thoughts, so necessary to brain workers, is lost. Following this will come deficient sight or blurred vision, muscular weakness and a dull pain in the small of the back. There is a tendency to tire easily; the digestion becomes impaired; the temper irritable; spirits depressed, ending in complete lack of confidence and a general feeling of disgust at our own weakness. When the blood and nerve forces have been wasted by disease, overwork, worry, brain-tire, high living, dissipation or other bad habits, Dr. Chase's Blood and Nerve Food rebuilds the system by replacing the same substances that have been lost. Price 50 cents.

tions. The idea would and its true place and its full expansion under the roof of a civic university that aimed to unite all classes of workers. And the labor unions ought to be met there by the Commercial club and the various associations of employers, for labor and capital would never fight in this city if they were obliged to look each other in the eye daily and make themselves constantly intelligible to each other.

"Second.—The women's clubs of Kansas City have for a long time been planning a clubhouse to take in their numerous organizations with their large and increasing membership. The social uprising of women, in spite of the skits of paragraphers, is the most significant and regenerative sign of the times. Civic economy is simply house-keeping on a large scale, and it never will be treated as a fine art and the sum of all the fine arts until the tact and taste of women shall enter fully into public affairs to vitalize the arid formalism of the masculine mind.

"Third.—The university building as the temple of the arts should especially be devoted to that one of the fine arts which is in its nature most popular and pervasive. It should contain a magnificent hall of music and so answer another of the keenly felt needs of Kansas City."
